

Unit 8 – Reflection:

This week has been challenging as I managed two units simultaneously. On the one hand, I was researching data structures for present unit, and on the other hand, I had to overlook another unit from a different module that had just started this week. It was quite a task to balance both modules and ensure I did justice to them. However, reflecting on my time management skills and resilience to accomplish all this simultaneously has gratified me immensely. It is fantastic to know that I can push myself to go beyond my limits and achieve my goals even in challenging times.
