

Unit 9 – Reflection:

This week, my primary focus was on preparing for my research proposal presentation. While I did allocate some time to work on statistical exercises, I found myself increasingly drawn to ensuring that my presentation would be of high quality. The pressure of delivering a good presentation caused me to neglect other tasks and exercises, leading to mismanagement of my time and delayed progress on my portfolio artefacts.

In addition, I received a disappointing grade on my literature review this week despite dedicating significant time to research. This has made me realise I must be more critical in my approach. I have a gap in essential analysis skills that I need to address. My tutor's feedback motivates me to work on this area and become more precise in my critical analysis.
